MOVIE PREVIEW:

'Westworld' Westworld is one of the most anticipated new shows of 2018. The critically acclaimed HBO series chronicles the life and times of a technologically advanced theme park, where humans (oh, and robots too) can act out their fantasy lives in an expansive, vast, and seemingly indestructible world. The first season premiered in April 2017 to rave reviews. Critically acclaimed director Neill Blomkamp (District 9) took on the directing duties and really had the whole thing wrapped up in a neat package. But as any fan of the series could tell you, you just can't hold back something this good, so for season 2 we're glad to have writer-director Lisa Joy (Pawn) getting her hands dirty. In short, season 2 is a sequel. Set almost 20 years later, the show follows hosts Dolores (Evan Rachel Wood), Maeve (Thandie Newton) and Bernard (Jeffrey Wright) and the new hosts who have replaced them and are still operating in their "world." A lot of international tourists are now frequenting Westworld, unaware that the world they see on the screen is not the one they are in. What will the tables turn, and who will cause trouble for the hosts in the future? These are just some of the questions we'll be answering as season 2 begins filming this summer in the UK. We'll keep you updated as more news rolls in. In the meantime, check out a glimpse of the interiors, and catch the premiere of "Trompe L'Oeil" on June 26.
